Tale of Many Tails

There are many shirt tails on the wall (and the seat of a pair of 'britches) to display to one and all that Clover Hill Hunt Club members do miss a deer now and then. All of the hunters shown here left part of a shirt behind at the J. K. Hamilton Store in Evergreen. But some of them also killed a buck during the season which ended in Appomattox County last week. (Seated) from left: James Carrico, one shirt tail and one buck; Twyman Mayberry, three shirt tails but one buck, also. Standing: Bobby Mobley, James Lee St. John, J. D. Mayberry and Donald Dixon, all with names and fabric surrounding the trophy head. There is space marked for W. E. Shelton (He ran before his friends could catch him to cut off a shirt tail.) And Cecil Wooldridge, "for not shooting"; lost the seat of his trousers. Hamilton's Store recorded 26 deer taken this season, far more than last year. Other hunters' shirt tails on the wall include Richard Seay, Jimmie Womack, Edward Dixon, Jack Cawthorn, O. D. Taylor, Dean Paulette, Bill Mays (Lynchburg), Kent Hodges, Dale Jennings, Tommy Harris, Henry Simmons, George Taylor, Billy Harvey, Curtis Conley, W. O. Slagle, Vernell Mitchell and Roger Slagle.

Jay Clapp called the other day to inquire about feeding raw soybeans to beef cattle.

Since this is a real good question and others may have soybeans to feed, I'll outline the answer.

Feeding soybeans can be tricky. It depends on which animal is getting the beans, what size is in the ration and holding period.

Raw beans are high in fat and need to rancid if ground and stored over a long period of time. The rancid taste reduces intake. This is management that you can handle this by grinding only a two to four week supply.

Never feed raw soybeans to cattle that are getting urea in the concentrate or silage. Beans contain a couple of important enzymes, the more important being urease. When cattle get raw beans urease rations the release causes a rapid release of urea into the blood streams which is very toxic at high levels.

When raw soybeans are fed to hogs or poultry the toxic enzymes (urease and lipozidose) act as a growth retardant.

Raw beans runabout 33% digestible protein. They can be satisfactorily fed to cattle or sheep that receive no urea.

For hogs and poultry, they should have to be roasted to be satisfactory. We may be looking toward the day when we'll be roasting beans for hogs, cattle, and poultry. Some research reports show roasted beans give as much as 10% faster grain on less feed. Now that's efficiency.

What does a roaster cost? Saw one machine listing for about $1800.00.

We had a real good annual meeting of the Lynchburg Feeder Cattle Association last week. Most people probably are aware of what these four special sales mean to the area in terms of dollars.

In 1970, 242 farmers from 12 counties sold 5694 heads for $978,248.10. This is nearly a million dollars worth of cattle in just four sales.

Cattle farmers and ranchers like others in agriculture across the country, are getting older. 47% of all the group have passed retirement age.

* * *

We've put together a list of sweet corn varieties by source that are resistant to Southern Corn Leaf Blight.

If you'd like a copy, stop by and pick it up.

If you have beef cattle, you'll probably be interested in seeing the Beef Master- - Hereford Cross calves that are on the Hugh Braford farm.

There were 630 pigs sold at the Farmville Feeder Pig Sale last Thursday night.

48 graded either number 1 or 2, which indicates a high quality pig is being produced in this area.

Prices were better than in most parts of the nation. 65 pound pigs sold for $19.25 per CWT.

"Of that there is no manner of doubt—
No probably, possible shadow of doubt—
No possible doubt whatever."

The latitude of England is the same as Labrador but because of the warm Gulf Stream which flows northeast across the Atlantic, England has a mild climate.
